

ANNOUNCING THE CREATION OF A NEW CRIMINAL JUSTICE JOURNAL, HOUSED IN THE DEPARTMENT OF CRIMINAL JUSTICE & CRIMINOLOGY
AT WASHINGTON STATE UNIVERSITY

THE JOURNAL OF CRIMINAL JUSTICE AND LAW

Editor

Craig Hemmens, Washington State University

For more information, please scan code on the left.

Editorial Board

James Acker, University at Albany-SUNY
Barbara Belbot, University of Houston-Downtown
David Brody, Washington State University
Rolando del Carmen, Sam Houston State University
Barry Feld, University of Minnesota
James Frank, University of Cincinnati
Joy Pollock, Texas State University
Christopher Smith, Michigan State University
Cassia Spohn, Arizona State University
Michael Vaughn, Sam Houston State University
Jeffery Walker, University of Arkansas at Little Rock
John Worrall, University of Texas at Dallas
Marvin Zalman, Wayne State University

Editorial Policy

JCJL will be a peer-reviewed journal devoted to the study of legal issues in criminal justice and criminology. Manuscripts dealing with any of the many issues in criminal justice and criminology that in some way touch on the law are welcome. Empirical studies, qualitative studies, and doctrinal legal studies are all acceptable. Essays on appropriate topics will also be accepted. The goal is to provide an outlet that has as its primary focus manuscripts dealing with legal issues in criminal justice and criminology.

Journal Format and Publication Schedule

JCJL will be an online journal initially, with plans to evolve it into a printed journal as soon as circumstances permit. It will be published two times a year initially, and move to four issues per year as submissions warrant. The first issue is scheduled to appear in early 2016.

Manuscript Submissions

We are now accepting manuscript submissions. Manuscripts may be sent to: jcjl@wsu.edu. Manuscripts should be in Word, be no more than 30 pages in length (including tables, figures, and references), with the title at the top of the first page. Include a separate title page, with a maximum 150 word abstract, and author contact information. Social science (APA) and legal citation (footnotes) are both acceptable.